

All Things Cherry Proudly Presents:

SQ2: Physical Attribute Correlated to Dispositional Quality

Formal Abstract:

Physical attributes and a stable emotional disposition drive attraction. Does a correlation exist between a major female physical attribute to the percentage of time she may be negatively dispositioned? An examination of the possibility of said disposition related to a specific physical attribute is presented using random sampling techniques as well as statistical analysis and it was apparent that there is indeed a correlation.

Deflowered by ATC

All Things Cherry

SQ Series Summary Results Survey 1

Webpage: <http://www.allthingscherry.com/>

---

---

Table of Contents

Background Information .....	1
Question Definition.....	2
Methods.....	2
Analysis.....	2
Results .....	3
A. Straight up Bitchy (SuB), with a capital B!.....	3
B. Bitchy Under the Influence (BUI) .....	5
C. Perceived Bitchy (PB).....	6
Conclusions .....	8
Comments .....	8

List of Figures

Figure 1. Boxplot Analysis for Straight up Bitchy Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.....	4
Figure 2. Boxplot Analysis for Bitchy Under the Influence Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.....	5
Figure 3. Boxplot Analysis for Perceived Bitchy Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.....	6
Figure 4. Trilateral Plot of Breast Size vs. The Three Subcategories of Bitchy. The letter represent cup size reported. Blue represents male submittals. Pink represents female submittals.....	7

List of Statements

Statement (1): Statement of Study .....	2
---	---

---

Background Information

Two of the most important qualities a man looks for in a woman are a stable emotional disposition and physical attraction. As physical components are (generally) easier to examine on a female, the purpose of this study was to determine if a correlation existed between a major female physical attribute (breasts aka love muffins) to the percentage of time she may have negatively dispositional qualities (bitchy).

The discussion arose, as many discussions of this nature do, upon the argument of whether or not a certain female in general was physically attractive to the male populous present. As alcohol consumption increased with time, the topic adjusted from the common, over discussed, topic of hair color relating to physical attraction to one of breast size. Surprising to some, the split was 50 – 50 by those present. This could only mean one thing: WAR!

The two fractions were ready for battle. Team 1, worshipers of the Temple of the Breast – who enjoyed nothing less than being in the warmth of the temple, adopted their motto “Big Boobs are the Bomb”. Team 2, believers in the faith that least you need is a mouthful and the most you need is a handful, adopted their motto of “Little T equals Little A and a whole lot of fun”.

The battle raged for several minutes exhausting both lines’ supplies and energy. Clearly, this was an epic battle between two paramount forces that would not be soon resolved. The big and bold attempted a risky move to cut at the nether regions of the teeny tinies using proof by example: “[name omitted] has no breasts. [name omitted] is a bitch.”

The blow was hard, fast, and deadly. Images of the fit and thin were replaced with horned, fire breathing, succubae. The repercussions of this statement were unimaginable. Could it be true? Could little breasted women be bitchier than their big breasted counterparts? The world must know!

Thus, survey question 2 was dragged into this world naked, bruised and crying for mercy, just as many of us men would like to be on a Friday night. Grab a beer, sit back and let’s enjoy the ride. Today ends the day when you no longer wonder if:

Question Definition

Does a correlation between the size of a woman's breast and the percent of time she is bitchy exist? (1)

Methods

The question proved to be more complicated than initially expected. Having full understanding that a female may or may not be bitchy could depend upon many variables, most notably, the actions of the current male companion. Also, it was initially thought that if a male was filling out the survey for a female, then the relationship to the female could skew the result, ie. a man may judge a female harsher than she deserves if they have just ended their relationship. It was important to determine if these factors would be needed to adjust the results.

Internet polling, via email, was conducted initially. However, this met with very few female responses. The ATC Crew, being reasonable, caring, female oriented males, felt the animosity may be such that females were shy about stating their breast size via email. An internet form was created and more participation was encouraged. This met with some success. The poll was left online for over one week.

Analysis

Upon closing the poll, 33 numerical results were obtained. 37 results in total were received; however, four histories of past relationships without numeric association. The stories are paraphrased in the comments section of this report, but no numeric values were given and are not included within the report.

Results from the relationship did not show any skew values. Men rating women who were their current wife\girlfriend held the same magnitude of men who were rating women who were ex-wives\girlfriends. Values were not adjusted based on relationship.

Sadly, only four women participated in the poll. Their responses were added to the same sampling pool as the men and no separate gender analysis techniques were used.

The ATC Crew felt that was three components to “bitchy”:

- 1) Straight up Bitchy (SuB) – any reason, doesn’t matter,
- 2) Bitchy Under the Influence (BUI) – bitchy caused by the actions of a male, and
- 3) Perceived Bitchy (PB) – (where the female may not be bitchy, but she is labeled the term).

To give the complete picture, we have analyzed each separately.

As stated above, 33 numeric responses were received. Of these, the following sample size from each cup was received:

A cup -	5 responses
B cup -	10 responses
C cup -	8 responses
D cup -	6 responses
DD cup -	3 responses
F cup -	1 response

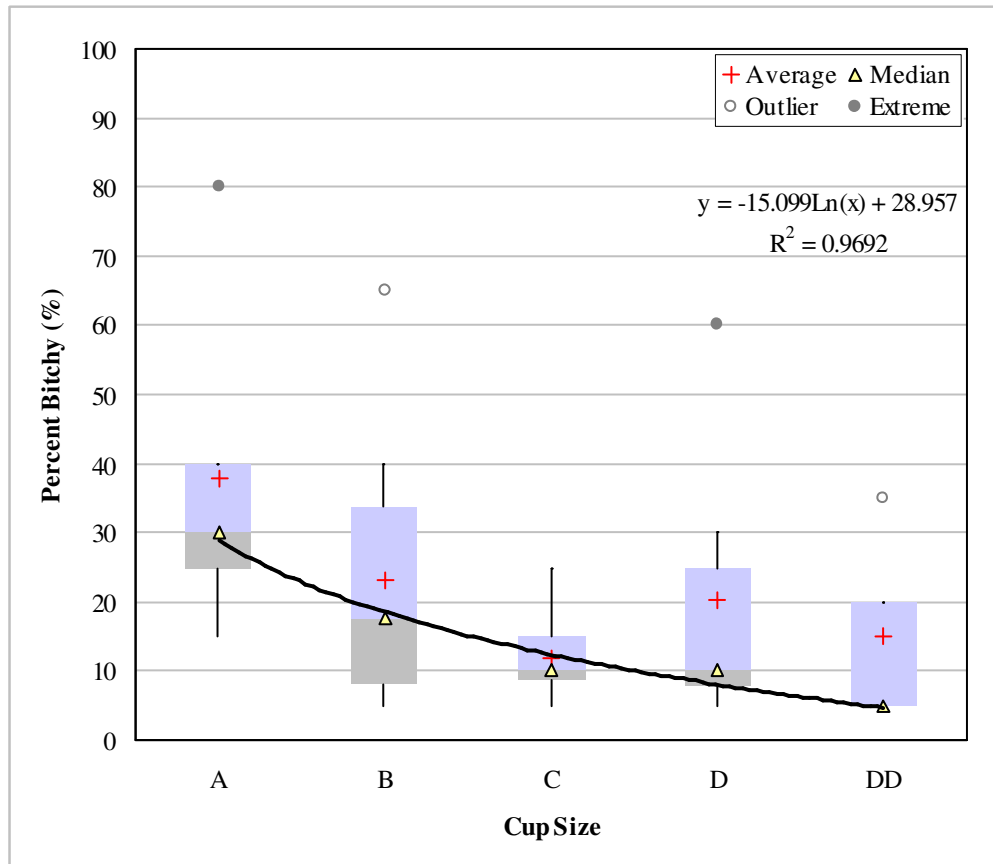

The F-cup was removed from the analysis due to lack of sample size for that cup. The F-cup females may be outraged to be stereotyped by the actions of 1 female. Without the ATC Crew knowing for sure if she was the alpha-female for the cup size, we felt that it was safer to exclude her from the analysis, in fear of the F-cup alpha-female showing up on our door and eating us.

Results

A. Straight up Bitchy (SuB), with a capital B!

This is the full package. We don’t care why they’re bitchy. We don’t care if their boyfriend makes them bitchy. All we’re interested in is straight up, raw, unadulterated bitchy. If bitchy was defined by one thing, this would be it.

The following boxplot (box and whisker diagram) was prepared based on the responses of the poll:

Figure 1. Boxplot Analysis for Straight up Bitchy Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.

The A-cup responses were higher than any other responses. There were a few outliers within each data set, as shown. The B-cup had the most responses, and thus was expected to have the largest spread. However, to the surprise of the ATC Crew, the C-cup had the second most number of responses (only two less than B) and a very narrow spread with no outliers. C-cups, we salute you here at ATC Headquarters. The next beer is for you.

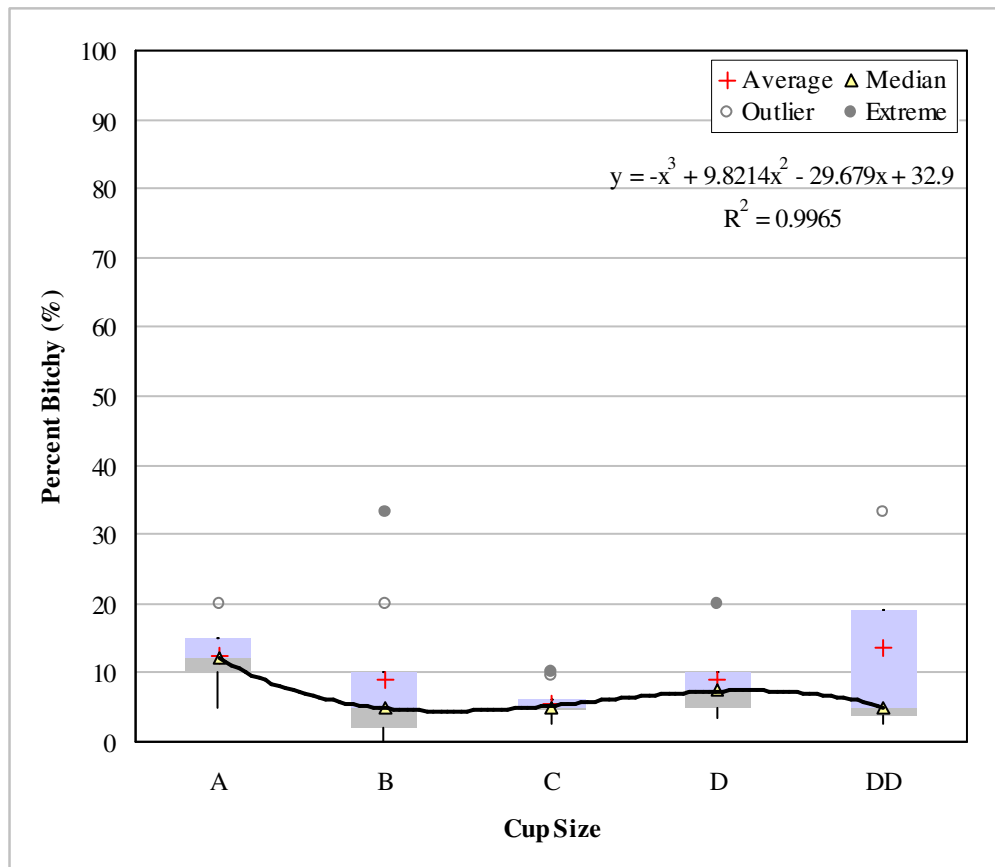

However, in response to our main question at hand –

The little breasted women were rated bitchier under this label. They had a higher magnitude of mean, median, and interquartile range, even without the extreme outlier of 80%.

The ATC Crew has applied a regression line on the median values for those of you that want to know just how much percent of the time you can expect you or your significant other to be bitchy. To use the line, substitute A = 1, B = 2, etc... in for the dependant variable.

B. Bitchy Under the Influence (BUI)

Let’s face it, guys are dumb. We do dumb things and as such, we expect there to be some consequences. This category was used to determine how bitchy a woman would be to every action a guy would do, e.g. if he ran off to Vegas and came back with a tattoo of another woman’s name, how much percent of your life are you going to get beat out of you? Figure 2 is once again our friendly boxplot analysis.

Figure 2. Boxplot Analysis for Bitchy Under the Influence Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.

Let’s hear it again for the C-cups! We do love you C-cups here at ATC! Once again, the C-cups are the most consistently least bitchy of all. The A-cups once again had the highest median values, although, the DD-cups, albeit having a low median, could possibly be just as bitchy.

Our opinion here at ATC is that regardless of cup size, if you do something stupid, you’re going to pay for it. We’re calling this one a tie, there is no correlation between BUI and cup size.

C. Perceived Bitchy (PB)

The art of deception or misdirection is a finely practiced, or neglected, one. This category was used to determine how much does a female look like she's bitchy, when in fact, she may be experiencing a different emotion. Regardless, it is still perceived as bitchy and the female (or male associated) is going to come out on the losing end.

To better phrase the idea of this term, we examined Tuna Salad Sandwiches. Straight up Bitchy is the tuna: it's got the most substance, you know exactly what it is, and it even smells a little funky. Bitchy Under the Influence is the celery: it's crunchy, it isn't always present, and sometimes you enjoy it a little too much and wish there was a little more of it; that is until you get some old soggy celery that you didn't see coming and it about knocks one of your teeth out. This leaves Perceived Bitchy, our mayonnaise in the tuna salad sandwich of bitchy: it's difficult to distinguish separate from the tuna, but we know it's there as everything is all slimy and squishy.

Figure 3. Boxplot Analysis for Perceived Bitchy Poll Results. Regression analysis was completed on median values.

A-cups, once again are leading the pack for Bitchy. B-cups, you're not that far behind. D-cups, be careful, you're almost looking like wanna-be B-cups. No one likes wanna-be's. DD-cups, way to go! It appears that people know when you're bitchy and when you're not.

Yes, once again little boobs could mean you're bitchier.

There is only one step of analysis remaining: the tuna salad sandwich. Let's see where the results fall on trilateral bitch diagram.

Figure 4. Trilateral Plot of Breast Size vs. The Three Subcategories of Bitchy. The letter represents cup size reported. Blue represents male submittals. Pink represents female submittals.

There are no major trends apparent within the trilateral diagram. If anything, there is perhaps some validity in the outliers. More outliers are of the smaller cup sizes. This may make one believe there is perhaps a greater chance that small cupped woman may not be well rounded bitchy. This may mean they could be straight up bitchy all the time, appear bitchy all time, or may only be bitchy while under the influence of males. Most cup sizes have an equal, or near equal distribution of primarily balancing the components of bitchy.

Conclusions

Little breasted women, sorry to say, are bitchier. Little boobs increases percentage of bitchy. C-cups are our new favorite flavor of woman, polling constantly low in all categories. Otherwise, we'll be thinking twice the next time we see smaller boobs.

Comments

This is our favorite portion of every poll. For everyone's viewing pleasure, in no particular order, the comments:

In my experience, the biggest bitches have the smallest cup size. They feel they need to be defensive all the time and it gets carried away. Sometimes, they end up bitchy. – male

Bitchiness wasn't so much of a problem with this girl. – male

In my experience, the smaller, the bitchier. The girl I date with the smallest was an uber-beyotcha, was sexually repressed, and a freak in the sack... She slept with [name omitted]. I dumped her ass. She stalked me for 2 years. – male

Bitchiness was only apparent while dating, although I would not want to cross this girl the wrong way. – male

Itty Bitty Titties = Bitchy – male

I swear, she blamed it on cramps 32 days a month. – male

I think that bitchiness is related to having a vagina – not cup size. Oh and it's related to sluttiness too. – female

Very sweet girl. Incredibly beautiful, ... on a hike she started crying because a tree was marked for clear-cutting... [omitted personal information] The tree thing did it in for me. That and her grandma was an uber bitch (and consequently had tiny sagging boobs). – male

I guess the "bitchiest" I have gotten is when my b/f would go out at night and not come home until really late (or early in the morning). He never invited me along either! Other reasons for bitchiness include not helping out with household chores (cooking, cleaning, etc) – female

I dunno... I consider myself lucky to not have a bitchy wife. – male

My wife is well endowed, but I don't think I can say she's bitchy. She may be very direct, but that's a completely different thing. She doesn't have the "I want to make you miserable" required to be bitchy. She and I are such science and engineering nerds we don't make time to hurt feelings. We're too busy planning our next trip or figuring out what sport to play next. I would think the better question would be to ask something like, "Does bitchy and spoiled go hand in hand?" Most of the bitchy people I know are just trying to get everything to go their way with complete disregard for others. – male

Pick a time of the day. – male

One time my wife was having a bad day. She couldn't get anything to pan out for her. We were having lunch and she kept getting up to get things and in the process kept knocking things over or off the table. So finally I said "Would You Just Relax!" She then proceeded to throw things around and not talk to me and be very huffy puffy. – male

I date a psychologist and if I'm mad at her, I just say I'm mad I'll work it out, and I get bitched at because, "I don't communicate my feelings and problems." But when she's mad she calls me a dick and walks away or hangs up the phone and then bitches at me for not listening or, again, not communicating. – male

She shared a doubled ended vibrator.... – male

Not a bitch but really artsy (scatter brained and loose, also loved LSD) – male

She's the woman of my dreams, no lie – male

The kind of girl you could be best friends with, not a bitch and was very interesting ... cerebral and smart, a little chubby but a redhead and pretty hot. Once while camping she brought steak and couldn't get a descent fire lit so she ate it raw, with her bare hands. I shit you not. We broke up almost immediately after that. My friends and I refer to her as the "Meat-Eater." She insisted she was schizophrenic but wouldn't tell me their names. 6 Yrs after we broke up she started batting for the other team. I bet she's good at it. (Hold on while I think about that a while) Ok done. Oh, I met her in my Taekwondo class... between that and the camouflage I should have known, but I guarantee you she's at least BI (but I bet she denies it) because I had no problems getting her motor running. Not certain but I suspect she has a fetish for Asian chicks. – male

She is now required to undergo psychiatric analysis... – male